CONFERENCE IS TO SETTLE QUESTION OF MINERS' STRIKE

IF DEMANDS ARE NOT MET GENERAL STRIKE MAY COME
WALKOUT IS ORDERED IT WILL AFFECT 180,000 MINERS WHO WILL LOSE $10,000,000 A MONTH WAGES.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The first conference of committees representing the mine workers and operators of the anthracite regions began here today, opening the discussion of the demands of the mine workers which were adopted at the national convention of United Mine Workers, at Indianapolis, last month.

The old contract between miners and operators, fixing the existing wage scale, length of work day and other working conditions, will expire March 31, and if today's conference does not result in the framing of a new contract satisfactory to both sides, there is a strong probability that April 1 will see this country plunged into the worst coal strike it has experienced in years.

The strike would involve no less than 180,000 mine workers, the loss of something like $10,000,000 a month in wages to the coal districts affected, and would throw out of work the thousands of railroad men who are now employed in the freightage of coal.

The committee that went to no conference with representatives of the operators for the purpose of submitting to the latter the demands of the miners in composed of National President John P. White and District Presidents Kennedy, Dempsey and Fay. A number of other officers of the national organization and its branches are in the city, and will be called into an extended conference should the operators desire one.

President George F. Baer, of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company is chairman of the committee of operators in today's conference. Mr. Baer was the chief spokesman of the coal mine during the big strike of 1902. This strike was terminated by an agreement brought about through the efforts of the Roosevelt strike commission, after the struggle had been raging for seven months.

The agreement granted the mine workers a ten per cent. increase in wages and a nine-hour working day, with a sliding wage scale based on the sale price of coal at tidewater. The agreement was for three years and was twice renewed, the last renewal to expire at the end of next month.

In the demands over which the miners and operators are now conferring, the miners ask that the conditions in the new contract allow for a 20 per cent. increase in wages, an eight-hour workday and recognition of the union. The miners also ask the coal companies to collect the union dues of the mine workers, that the conciliation board be abolished, that payment for mined coal be made on a weight basis instead of by the carload, and that the contract go into effect April 1, 1912, and expire March 31, 1913.

The miners back up their demands by arguing that, after working under the same agreement for nine years, their fairness to employees and willingness to preserve peace should now be recognized by an increase in the wage scale and the granting of a shorter work day.

Before going into conference, National President White expressed confidence that the meeting would result in a continuance of the amicable relations between the miners and their employers. He said that it was the intention of the committee to do its utmost to bring about a satisfactory agreement with the operators through diplomatic means.

ASSISTANT CHIEF OF BUREAU TO INSPECT GAME PRESERVE
HENRY OLDYS WILL GIVE LECTURE AT PALMETTO CLUB ON SUBJECT OF BIRD NOTES NEXT MONDAY.

For the purpose of inspecting the national game preserve lying south of this city on the peninsula and investigating conditions there, particularly as regards bird life, Henry Oldys, assistant chief of the bureau of bird and game preserves of the United States department of agriculture, will be in Daytona next week, and while here will deliver a lecture in the Palmetto club building.

The subject of Mr. Oldys' lecture will be "Bird Notes," and it will be given next Monday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock.

For more than 12 years Mr. Oldys has been connected with the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, associated in the work of game protection. During this period and for many years previously his leisure moments have been devoted to the study of bird music. In the course of his study he has discovered many evidences of close relationship between bird music and human music. His lecture on bird music consists of an account of certain of the more familiar birds, illustrated by whistled imitations of their songs, and touches in an untechnical way on the analogies between bird and human music.

Deputy Sheriff T. O. Melton received a telegram yesterday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock from Sheriff G. B. Within 20 minutes of the receipt of the message Mr. Melton arrested the man among the crowd on South Beach street, and had him safely lodged in the city jail. Singer is said to be charged with some financial irregularity at West Palm Beach.

10,000 IDLE MINERS IN ENGLAND
OTHERS ARE UNDER ORDERS TO WALK OUT EARLY FRIDAY
CONFERENCE BEING HELD TO DAY IN FINAL EFFORT TO REACH AN AGREEMENT WHICH WILL PREVENT BIG STRIKE.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Late this afternoon all indications point to the conclusion that the great national coal strike has been averted. The basis of the settlement will probably be announced tonight.

Ready for the Strike—
LONDON, Feb. 27.—It is estimated that nearly 10,000 men and boys are idle today, while the remainder of the miners and colliery boys are under orders to go out on a strike early Friday morning.

Representatives of the miners, mine owners and the government cabinet are holding a conference today and making a final effort to reach an agreement that will avert what may develop into the most widespread tie-up the world has ever seen.

It is currently reported today that Lloyd George has won over D. A. Thomas, one of the richest and most influential operators in Southern Wales, to accept the minimum wage scale, and that he is hopeful of success with the other mine owners.

TEACHERS TALK ABOUT ORGANIZATION

DISCUSS COURSES OF STUDY AT GATHERING IN ST. LOUIS
PRINCIPAL TOPIC IS HOW TO GET BEST RESULTS FROM PUPILS AND ELIMINATE ALL THE WASTE TIME.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 27.—The opening session of the joint meeting of the department of superintendents of the National Education association and a number of other educational organizations of the United States, was held here this morning, when Charles E. Chadey, president of the department of superintendence called the meeting to order. Mr. Chadey is superintendent of schools in Denver.

The sole topic of discussion at this morning's session was the necessity of adjusting and changing the course of study and school organization for the purpose of increasing the efficiency of pupils in their studies and eliminating all waste time during the school hours.

A number of committees held preliminary meetings yesterday for the purpose of arranging subjects and innovations to be discussed and introduced at the regular session. Among the subjects that will be discussed are: Ways and means of determining school efficiency; duties of school superintendents in regard to the welfare of the child, such as enforcing child labor laws, helping children to their vocation, care of weak-minded pupils and the education of girls; agriculture in the rural school; the effect on moral and educational moving pictures; the present status of education as a science; and the difference between graduate and undergraduate work in education.

THE COLE & RICE SHOW COMES HERE TOMORROW.
The Cole & Rice big show will be here tomorrow for two performances, afternoon and evening, on the vacant lot opposite the depot. The circus has been giving satisfaction in other cities in Florida and the Titusville Star has the following to say of the show:

"The Cole & Rice German-American shows exhibited at this place Monday, both afternoon and evening, to a fair attendance notwithstanding the really cold and disagreeable weather."

"Taken in all the features were fine and some of them alone were well worth the price of admission."

"The performing ponies and dog showed training of the highest order. The trapeze work was all excellent, most especially the head balancing act; while the mirth-making clowns kept everyone highly entertained."

OLD FORT DISCOVERED NEAR TOMOKA

RUINS ON HARWOOD TRACT LOCATED BY THE SURVEYOR
AMERICAN LAND COMPANY MAY REPRODUCE STRUCTURE EVIDENTLY BUILT BY THE SPANIARDS MANY YEARS AGO.

Reproducing an old Spanish fort a short distance back from the Tomoka river on the tract of land recently purchased by the American Land company, may soon establish another point of historical interest to tourists and travelers in this section of the state.

The ruins of the old fort were recently discovered by Surveyor D. D. Rogers, who has been engaged for some time in plotting the Harwood tract purchased by the land company. The fort was evidently built about the time Florida was first inhabited by the Spaniards, as a protection against either the French or the Indians, and the portions of the walls still standing show it was of masonry design, as well as being of unusual strength. The fort apparently had plenty of room inside to furnish protection to a large number of people. At each end there was a turret, or tower, and the whole building was surrounded by a deep ditch, filled with water, entrance and exit from the fort being made by means of a draw bridge.

The fort was constructed of coquina rock, millions of yards of which have been discovered underlying a ridge running through the Harwood tract. From appearances it is judged the fort was partly destroyed when abandoned by the persons who first built it, but the foundations and portions of the walls still stand.

The American Land company is now considering having the structure rebuilt in as near the exact original style as possible, using the coquina rock from the ridge through the land for the construction. In case the fort is rebuilt it will be held as a point of historical interest and the land on which it stands will be retained by the land company. In this case it is also probable all excursion boats running up the Tomoka river will be stopped long enough for the travelers to inspect the structure.

"FLORIDA'S CALL DAY" IS WEDNESDAY, MAY 1.
Residents of Daytona and vicinity should remember that May 1 is "postcard day," when every person in the state of Florida is expected to send out postcards, pamphlets, newspapers or circulars setting forth the beauties and advantages of this great state to persons living in all sections of the country. Last year there were thousands of postcards and descriptive articles sent out from the state of Florida the first of May and this year it is expected there will be a still larger outgoing mail from the state.

The following proclamation has been issued by Governor Gilchrist: "Wednesday, May 1, 1912, is hereby designated as 'Florida's Call.' On this day all public spirited residents and all people having the interest of humanity at heart, will make known to the outside world, through postal cards, newspapers, pamphlets, or circulars, the manifold benefits to be derived from living permanently as a resident, or temporarily as a visitor, in our Great State."

Tim Molony —Brute

By M. J. Phillips

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

"You're a brute, Tim Molony!" said Sheila O'Brien, her blue eyes flashing, "to whip Danny Cassidy!"

"Poor little Danny," mocked Big Tim. "Sure, he weighs two hundred." "But he isn't as big as you are," returned Sheila, with a glance of admiration, sternly repressed. "You had no business to strike him."

"He danced five times with you last night," accused Big Tim. "Every time he does that, and brags about it, I'll thump him."

"You have no thought of a poor girl's reputation," rejoined Sheila, on the verge of tears. "Sure, what will folks say, when they know two big cads were fighting about me?"

Being unused to the ways of women, Tim blundered then. "If you didn't dance but once with Cassidy," he pointed out triumphantly, "there'd be no fighting and no talking."

"I'll dance with who I please," flared Sheila, white and angry. "Here's your ring, Tim Molony; you can't prison me!"

It was a rueful Big Tim who found himself in the street soon after, his modest diamond ring in his pocket and desolation in his heart. That the hammering of the bumptious Cassidy would bring any such result he had never for a moment dreamed, or he might have been slower about going into action.

But the damage was done. He promised himself sternly that if Cassidy didn't keep a civil tongue in his head another beating would be his portion.

Big Tim, lately promoted to the "Broadway squad," governed the busiest corner in the city with a rod of iron. Inches over six feet, with shoulders as broad as a door, he carried his bulk like a willow wand. He was a handsome chap, with roguish brown eyes. His brown hair showed an unruly desire to curl behind, though it was clipped short. He was always clean shaven, with a tinge of healthy red in his firm cheeks.

Chauffeurs, motormen and teamsters were on their best behavior at his corner. He had a singular dislike for argument and a red-blooded love for action. The man who did not heel white-gloved hand was likely to find himself jerked bodily to the paving stones by a blue-clad giant with a leap like a catamount.

"Molony is good for them"

The next day after his quarrel with Sheila he ruled his little kingdom with the impartial excellence of Solomon, albeit it was all done subconsciously. The warning whistle blew and traffic stopped. With one hand he held three converging strands; a gesture of the other and the fourth thread worked its way through. Then he shuttled the others back and forth with the calm confidence of the weaver who carries his design ever before him.

His thoughts were not on his work. Everywhere he looked he saw Sheila's blue eyes blazing with anger, clouded with tears. Every sound resolved itself into Sheila's voice. "You're a brute, Tim Molony!"

Again and again he rehearsed their quarrel, or thought of the seven hundred dollars saved up with which to start housekeeping. The poor little spurned ring throbbed and burned against his heart.

He did not know that, mid-afternoon, Sheila, lips compressed and head held high, came down the avenue. She was on a wholly unnecessary errand which she assured herself, was very important. Nor did he know that on pretense of waiting for a car she was watching him with a betraying wistfulness.

Despite his preoccupation Tim saw the little old lady on the curb as soon as she arrived there. She had silvery hair. It showed around the delicate face, beneath the bonnet, which was fashion's last word in the seventies. She was bent and carried a cane. She wore a shawl, her gown was pitifully shabby. In her faded blue eyes was a look almost of terror. The streets were slippery with new fallen snow.

Tim's whistle shrilled. Both hands went up decisively. All traffic—trucks, motors, trolleys—stopped. The living stream, pouring in from four directions, was dammed. Lichens banged their gongs, possibly, chauffeurs looked inquiringly. But Tim looked neither to the right nor the left; he hastened to the old lady on the curb.

"You want to cross, ma'am?" he asked, with his sunny smile, and offered her his arm.

The old lady took it gratefully. "I suppose a lame old woman has no business on this busy street," she said, a little breathlessly.

"Sure, and you have, ma'am," returned Tim, stoutly. "Take your time an' don't slip. 'Tis bad footing."

"Thank you, young man; you're the first person I've met since I left home that wasn't in a hurry. The city's a dreadful place!"

"It is so, ma'am," agreed Tim, soberly.

When their slow journey was half completed, the old lady realized that the lane of six feet which they were traversing was banked on every side by impatient hundreds who waited on her footsteps.

She halted and withdrew her hand from the policeman's arm, the better to raise a chiding forefinger. "All these people waiting just for me? You shouldn't have done it. They're more important than I am."

"They think they are, but they're not, ma'am," assured Big Tim. "Wait in' is good for them."

He gave the nearest motorman a level glance that stopped him in mid-bang. A grim, contemptuous stare, sweeping over a befurred chauffeur and significantly to his license number, brought the fellow's gauntleted hand quickly from the horn.

The other curb was won at last, and the old lady turned for a final word. "You're real good," she said, earnestly. "The city can't be such a dreadful place when there are boys like you in it. Is your mother living?"

"Yes, ma'am—in Ireland," returned Big Tim.

"I hope you write to her?"

"Twice a month, ma'am."

"Keep on writing. Don't ever miss. Mothers set store by letters." She smiled lonesomely. "Good-by, Mr. Policeman."

Big Tim, bareheaded, bowed courtier-like over her fingers. She dropped him a little curtsey.

To Sheila it was like a scene from a play. The snow was clean and fresh. The glittering show windows, pricked out by their myriad lights, were the background. The old lady and Tim, unconsciously graceful and sincere, held the center of the stage. The hurrying crowds on the walk filled in.

The temper of the audience in the street changed at the little tableau. Impatient scowls gave place to smiles.

Big Tim dove into the tangle and zigzagged his way to the middle of the street again. His whistle sounded. His white-gloved hand was aloft, beckoning. The snarled strands of traffic straightened out and shuttled back and forth.

The motorman who had banged the loudest gave Moloney a friendly grin as he rumbled past. On all sides people nodded and smiled. There was something heart-warming about the gentle kindness of the big policeman.

"I'd like to get across, Mr. Moloney," said a timid voice when traffic had settled down again. Tim turned like a shot. It was Sheila, demure and friendly.

"Yes, ma'am," he stammered.

Almost at the curb she hugged his elbow suddenly to her breast. "You aren't a brute, Timmie," she said, warmly. "I'm a mean, ungrateful girl, so I am."

"Sheila!" cried Tim, huskily. "Can I come up tonight?"

She smiled dazlingly, and a blush mounted to her rounded cheeks. "If you'll bring me my ring."

"Darlin'!" said Big Tim, fervently.

Success in Life.

The service in philosophy, of speculative culture, towards the human spirit is to rouse, to startle it into sharp and eager observation. Every moment some form grows perfect in hand or face; some tone on the hills or sea is choicer than the rest; some mood of passion or insight or intellectual excitement is irresistibly real and attractive for us—for that moment only. Not the fruit of experience, but experience itself is the end. A counted number of pulses only is given to us of a variegated, dramatic life. How may we see in them all that is to be seen in them by the finest senses? How shall we pass most swiftly from point to point, and be present always at the focus where the greatest number of vital forces unite in their purest energy?

To burn always with this hard, gem-like flame, to maintain this ecstasy, is success in life.—Walter Pater's Conclusion in "The Renaissance."

Mystery in Corner Stones.

One phase of New York life that tures me past all resistance is the opening of an old corner stone," said the city salesman. "Every time my progressive townsmen pull down a building that was put up a few years back with impressive ceremonies I try to be present at the unsealing of the old stone. Nothing reveals the change in fashions more mercifully than its contents. The other day they opened the cornerstone of a building that had run its course in 12 years. It had been the whim of the owner to preserve certain articles of feminine adornment for future ages to marvel over. Along with the more serious documents representative of contemporary life were a box of hairpins, a baby's feeding bottle, several toys and photographs of pretty women."

Went Out of Life Together.

M. and Mme. Varay, aged 81 and 79, both died of old age at Corresa, France, the other day. The date was the anniversary of both their birthdays.

Women Do Well in Marathon.

A woman's Marathon race took place from Polegate to Eastbourne, Eng., the other day. Out of 18 competitors 10 finished the full distance of about four and a half miles, and the winner led by only a few inches.

JUST GOSSIP BY THE GOSSIPER.

The brush fire on the peninsula Monday afternoon is another illustration of the necessity of clearing and cleaning all the unoccupied land between the river and the beach. Every season serious and alarming brush fires are started on the peninsula and after hard work is required to keep the flames from spreading to cottages or buildings and doing a great amount of serious damage. These fires usually start on land held for speculation, which remains in its original condition, where a little time and labor expended in clearing the land would put it in condition so brush fires could not get a start. Every season there are calls from Daytona Beach and Seabreeze for assistance from Daytona to help fight brush fires, and some day one of these fires will get such a start no amount of help can head it off and there will be a clean sweep through some section of those two towns. A good preventative against such a catastrophe would be for the two town councils to compel every land owner to clear his land of all underbrush and scrub and keep it cleared. Under these conditions there would be less danger of serious fires and the men who are buying this land as a speculation would be required to lay out some work to put it in proper condition.

Rapid Journey for That Age.
Cardinal Wolsey did not live in an age of rapid transit, but he created it for himself. His capacity for rapid travel was a valuable aid in carving out a career. Wolsey is said to have first won royal favor in this way. He was charged with a message from Henry VII. to the Emperor Maximilian in the low countries and left London in the afternoon. He went by boat to Gravesend, by horse to Dover, then by boat again to Calais, and he was with the emperor the following evening and back to the king in just over two days from the time of starting.

Australia's Tallest Tree.
The tallest tree in Australia is probably one of the eucalyptus amygdalina regina species, which was found some time ago on a spur of Mount Baw Baw, in Gippsland. Victorian experts now have ascertained the height of the tree to be 326 feet 1 inch. Its girth at feet from the ground is 25 feet 7 inches. A tree of the same species discovered at Neerim, also in Gippsland, while only 227 feet high, has a girth of 55 feet 7 inches at 6 feet from the ground.

Artificial Turquoise.
From ivory, which shows no grain, pieces of the size of the turquoise desired are shaped and left for 14 days in a saturated solution of ammoniacal copper oxide in water, then rinsed and dried. If the color of the turquoise is not deep enough, the operation may be repeated.

Most Primitive Race of People.
As a modern example of an absolutely primitive race of people Prof. W. Vois of Breslau university, has brought to notice the Kubus, who are completely isolated in the forest interior of Sumatra. They share the life and habits of the apes living in the same forest. They do not seem to have advanced even to the hunting stage of development, and are not known to have any ideas of religion.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

WHEN BENEDICT ARNOLD WAS LOYAL.

By A. W. MACY.

In the early days of the Revolutionary war one of Washington's most trusted generals laid before him a plan to invade Canada by way of the Maine wilderness and capture Quebec by surprise. Washington approved, the project was undertaken, and came astonishingly near succeeding. The little army was composed of about 650 poorly clad men, with barely 400 good muskets among them, and only five rounds of ammunition to each man. After a march of almost incredible hardships through 200 miles of what is to this day a mountainous wilderness, the little army climbed the cliffs and boldly demanded the surrender of the city. But it was in no condition to enforce its demand, for the place was strongly fortified and garrisoned by 1,900 men. So the little band withdrew up the river a few miles, where it encountered a detachment of British soldiers. A sharp fight ensued, during which the leader of the Americans was badly wounded. Had he been killed then and there his name would have gone down in history as that of a patriot and hero. But he recovered, and his name is now the synonym for treason in this country—Benedict Arnold. Had his bold expedition succeeded, it probably would have united Canada to the thirteen colonies, and changed the whole course of the war.

Picked Up Ancient Scotch Coin.
A unique, ancient coin dated 1677, was picked up recently by Mr. George Jackson, of Johnshaven, Kincairdineshire, Scotland, while he was working in his garden. On the one side is the crossed sword and scepter with the crown, and on the other a Scotch thistle, with the date over the top. "Hib. Rex" can be distinctly read. The small copper coin, just the size of a present-day sixpence, is in excellent preservation.

A LUCKY BEGGAR.

Robert Newman telephoned the police:
"I want you to find my trousers," he said.
"Did you look under the mattress?" asked the telephone clerk in the chief's office.
"No," said Newman.
"Give me the description," he said.
"All right. The number on the case is 5,574,561 and the number on the works is 5,133,475."
"What are you talking about, anyway?"
"My watch."
"I thought it was your trousers."
"Yes, the watch was in the trousers' pocket. A beggar called here and asked me to give him a pair of trousers. I did. After he was gone I discovered I gave him the ones with my watch in them. Find that beggar, will you?"

HEAVY VOTE IS POLLED IN FRANCHISE ELECTION.
A heavier vote than was expected is being polled today in the special election being held to give the people an opportunity to ratify or reject the action of the city council in granting a franchise for a gas plant to the Schantz Electric, Ice & Water company. Indications are the franchise will be accepted by the people, although a count of the votes may show a different result.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. CHUTJIAN.
Funeral services were held this morning over the remains of Mrs. Kazar Chutjian, brief mention of whose death was made in yesterday's Daily News. The funeral had been delayed awaiting the arrival from Boston of Mrs. Chutjian's brother, K. Boyajian, who came in last evening. The services were held in the Bingham & Maley undertaking parlors at 9 o'clock. Rev. F. F. Marsh, pastor of the Congregational church, officiating and the interment was at Pinewood cemetery. Mrs. Chutjian died of peritonitis, following childbirth. The child is still living.

OHIO PICNIC TO BE HELD AT PONCE PARK NEXT SATURDAY
At the meeting of the officers of the Ohio organization held at the Peoples State bank yesterday afternoon, it was decided to hold the Ohio picnic at Ponce Park next Saturday, leaving this city by boat in the morning and spending the day at Ponce Park in fishing and other pastimes, including a fish dinner at Paoetti's. This is a fine opportunity for the Ohio people to get together, have a good day's outing and become better acquainted.

ALL CARNIVAL SHOWS WILL BE OPEN TONIGHT.
All the attractions connected with the Johnny Jones Carnival company were not ready for the public last night, but several of them were open and these were apparently well patronized. The late arrival of the special train bringing the carnival was the reason for some of the shows not being able to open last night, but they are all expected to be in shape to entertain all persons by tonight.

PREACHER TO ENTER POLITICS
REV. D. H. RUTTER TO TRY FOR STATE SENATORIAL PLUM
SAYS HE YIELDS TO URGENT REQUESTS OF FRIENDS TO ENTER RACE IN THE COMING PRIMARIES.

Rev. D. H. Rutter, pastor of the First M. E. church of this city, stated to the Daily News this afternoon that at the urgent solicitation of many friends, he has consented to become a candidate for state senator from the 28th senatorial district, embracing Volusia county. Mr. Rutter says he has assurances of strong support. He is an ardent friend of the laboring man and says there is much needed legislation in Florida for the interests of the laboring classes.

HIS SPEECH WAS GREAT HIT
Pumperton Thought It Was His Wit, But His Wife Discovered the Reason.

It was late before Pumperton got home, but his wife was still sitting up for him. "Well, John," she greeted him, "how was the dinner? And how was your speech received?" Pumperton took off his coat, smiling genially. "Oh, splendidly, my dear, splendidly! I got there a bit late, when the others were already at the table, but I just slipped in quietly and didn't make any stir."
"Well, how about the speech?" she reminded him. "Did it make as much of a hit as you expected?"
"Oh, yes—more. None of the preceding speeches had been particularly clever, and they had hardly raised a smile. But I had no more than stood up and begun when they began to laugh. I went on, my dear, and I assure you, they simply shook. I never have seen any company so thoroughly entertained. I even expanded a little—gave them a couple of new stories that came into my mind. And when I sat down they cheered and clapped and laughed for minutes. I shall never forget how they laughed."
"Yes, I can well imagine so," his wife said sarcastically. "But the next time you are to make an after-dinner speech wouldn't it be well to put your vest on before leaving home?"

Really Good Manners.
What then are good manners? Simply a fine and always thoughtful consideration for the feelings and comfort of others; polite and kindly address to "inferiors" as to equals or "superiors"; graciousness, which is also grace, under all circumstances; and with women especially, no matter whether in drawing room or office, that "low, soft voice," which Shakespeare declares to be "an excellent thing in women."

Wooden Teeth.
Japanese dentists have introduced wood as a substitute for porcelain and rhinoceros ivory. The wooden teeth used by the Japanese dentist are remarkably natural in appearance and in the fine bluish color peculiar to the teeth of the Malay race. The teeth are fastened in place by a secret process jealously guarded by its inventor.—Harper's Weekly.
